Carolyn Barber is a Global Sales Director with Compuware Corporation. Recently, she has been asked to take on the responsibility to create and manage Compuware's Professional Development Program that recruits, provides intensive 6 month technical training program and mentors IT professionals to provide their foundation for a successful career at Compuware.

Prior to the PDP, she was responsible for the roadmap development and solution sales of Compuware Solutions for IT in business requirements, agile development, application outsourcing and application modernization. The roadmap includes business case development, go-to-market strategies, sales collateral, delivery collateral (methodology, best practices, tools and templates) and launch campaigns.

Throughout her 19 plus years with Compuware, Carolyn has held a variety of increasingly advanced responsibilities in both IT delivery and sales. Prior to Compuware, she spent 10 years in various Supply Chain Management and IT responsibilities at Federal Mogul and FMC Corporation.

Carolyn holds a BA degree from Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana and received her CPIM in 1983 from the Association for Operations Management (APICS). She is a member of the Project Management Institute, International Institute of Business Analysts and IEEE Computer Society. She is currently the Secretary of Michigan Council of Women in Technology Executive Board of Directors.
